SELECTED POETRY.

Not Jealous.
He came to the tower of her love,
Twisting his sweet guitar;
He called her in song his snow-white dove,
His lily, his fair, his bright star.
He sang that his love was beyond compare;
His voice was sweet as his song.
He said she was pure, and gentle, and fair,
And I thought that he wasn't far wrong.
Why, he sang and played till the moon was high,
And sang the love-born strain,
Till the night caught up each tremulous sigh,
And echoed each sweet refrain.
He told her he loved her, over and over,
With passion in every word,
In song that I never heard before,
And sweeter ones never were heard.
And I was I jealous? Well, scarcely, no;
I even echoed him, soft and low,
When he sang what I would not say,
For, while he sang 'neath the window-ill
Singing my darling's charms,
I sat in the parlor dark and still,
With the girl that he sung in my arms—
A New Mother Ship.

Miscellaneous Items.

THE BY that walks on oleomargarine is not the butter fly.
At the polls, recently, it was easy to tell the man who voted "yes" on the license question by the appearance of his "no's."
GAINSBOROUGH late are being hissed in the New York theatres. "Take your clothes off your head, sir," is the somewhat startling remark.
The origin of the saying that clothes must not be eaten during "Months without an R," is found in Butler's "Dyer's Dy Dinner," written in 1509.
Among the members of the Lower House of the Tennessee Legislature are a white man and a negro who hold the relation of master and slave before the law. Now one is just as low down as the other.
"What regiment is that?" inquired a stranger seeing a long line of military men filing into the State House. "That is not a regiment," was the reply; "that is only the Governor's staff."
Physicians who say that it is not healthy to sleep in the daytime are rebuked by a religious journalist of the Keystone State, who says that people who attend church have remarkably good health.
The new fashion of short dresses is very pretty but hard on the Main-street clerks. They have to sweep off the sidewalk every morning now, and one very fashionable dry-goods house was compelled to buy a broom this week, a thing they hadn't done in years.
"Sweet Sixteen" must now take a back seat, as the Americans say. The aesthetes declare that the quite too young age of quivering sensibility and sudden sympathy is two-and-twenty. It is impossible, they say, to be "utterly after" before that age.—Society
PHYSICAL INJURIES INHERITED BY OFFSPRING.—In an article on "I inheritance," contributed to Nature, Mr. Darwin says—"Mr. Bishop has also given me a case of inheritance of another kind, namely, of a peculiarity which arose, as it appears, from an injury, accompanied by a dislocated state of the part. This latter fact seems to be an important element in all such cases, as I have elsewhere endeavored to show. A gentleman, when a boy, had the skin of both thumbs badly cracked from exposure to cold, combined with some skin disease. His thumbs swelled greatly, and remained in this state for a long time. When they healed they were misshapen, and the nails ever afterwards were singularly narrow, short, and thick. This gentleman had four children, of whom the eldest, Sarah, had both her thumbs and nails like her father's; the third child, also a daughter, had one thumb similarly deformed. The two other children, a boy and girl, were normal. The daughter, Sarah, had four children, of whom the eldest and the third, both daughters, had their two thumbs deformed; the other two children, a boy and girl, were normal. The great grandchildren of this gentleman were all normal. Mr. Bishop believes that the old gentleman was correct in attributing the state of his thumbs to cold, combined with skin disease, as he positively asserted that his thumbs were not originally misshapen, and there was no record of any previous inherited tendency of the kind in his family. He had brothers and sisters, who lived to have families, some of them very large families, and in none was there any trace of deformity in their thumbs."
A CALIFORNIA GIRL.—A young man in the neighborhood had taken up 160 acres of land, built a house upon it, bored wells, dug ditches, sown it in wheat, and spent hundreds of dollars upon it. It happened to be a dry season and the crop failed. He became discouraged, and offered his claim and improvements at a low price. The young lady gave him $100 for his right, title and interest in the land and everything on it. She let it lie. She need do nothing more. She said the insufficient crop for her food. The boys raised and scattered it. The winter rains came, and with it came the volunteer crop, which matured and has just been cut, yielding twelve bushels per acre on 120 acres. She will clear her $1,500, besides having the land and improvements.
